PANORAMA in PUNTA ROCCA

Marmolada, the Queen of the Dolomites, offers the incredible opportunity to admire the main Dolomites peaks and all the surrounding mountain tops from a privileged point of view. The panorama terrace of Punta Rocca, at 3.265 m, is the ideal place for a 360 degrees photo of the mountains surrounding the Marmolada. In the same station, you can even visit the Cave of the Holy Mary, with the statue consecrated in 1979 by Pope John Paul II.

Since December 2017, there are two new innovations, which enrich this station: the photo exhibition about the construction of the cable car, on the occasion of its first 50 years of activity and two new panoramic lifts, which give the opportunity to our guests, handicapped or not to descend on the glacier, directly from the boarding area.

HISTORY IN SERAUTA

The Marmolada and the Dolomites were the stage of one of the bloodiest war of the Twentieth Century and they are still wearing the scars of it today. Not to forget is hence fundamental, in order not to repeat eternally the same mistakes. For this reason, in Serauta station, a museum was built in 1990, where different funds, belonging to both armies, were kept and displayed. The museum was renewed in 2015, becoming Museo Marmolada Grande Guerra 3000 m, Europe highest museum.

You can visit it alone or with a guided tour, both the entrance and the guide are included in the ticket of the cable car (if you are in group, the visit, which should be booked in advance, can be for max. 15 people in order to give everyone the opportunity to live in the best way possible the tale about the life of soldiers in trenches on the Dolomites). During Summer, you can also visit the Sacred Monumental Area, constituted by different Austro-Hungarian and Italian tunnels and positions, dating back to 1915-1917.

The Sacred Monumental Area, together with Forcella a Vu, can be the ideal destination for those, who want to plunge thenselves into the history of the Great War on Marmolada. The first one is easier, the second one is just for experts, both require the use of climbing equipment, if you want to complete the whole hike. In particular, we suggest for the visit to Forcella a Vu, more than the one to the Sacred Monumental Area, to look for the help of a local mountain guide. The guide will allow you to live this experience feeling completely safe and it will be an added value, because he could tell you some stories and anecdotes about this place and its history.

FOOD and BEVERAGE

Nearby the Museum in Serauta, you can have lunch in our self-service restaurant, while nearby the departure station of the cable car in Malga Ciapela you can take a break in our cozy bar.

IN THE SURROUNDINGS - TREKKING

Going back to the valley, the experience can continue visiting the gorge of Serrai di Sottoguda, an incredibly beautiful natural park, and Sottoguda hamlet, recently included in the list of Italian most beautiful hamlets. This small village is characterised by its narrow roads, its wooden haylofts, its typical mountainous houses and by its local handcraft shops.

If you want to deepen your knowledge about WWI, you can visit the multifunctional room, which is located in the Tourist Office building. You can also choose to do one of the many different trekking experiences or hikes on the mountains surrounding Marmolada, as the one on Padon mountain, which was it too a stage of WWI fights. This mountain can be easily reached by chairlift and from there other two trails begin: one goes toward Crepe Rosse, the other one toward Porta Vescovo and Vièl dal Pan. In both cases, you will enjoy an incredible view on Marmolada glacier.

Another beautiful hike will bring you to the foot of the Queen and it is the one of the Ombretta Valley and Falier hut, which was bombed from the Austro-Hungarian positions of Punta Rocca during the Great War. A last trail of incredible beauty is the one that drives you to Lèch dei Giai, a small alpine lake, left untouched because far enough from the traditional communication roots and reachable from Malga Ciapela or from Sottoguda. There are then many other different proposals, which you can find on the website of Marmolada Tourist Office: http://marmolada.com/en/

IN THE SURROUNDINGS – MTB AND E-BIKE

Concerning MTB, Forca Rossa is the perfect destination. You ride up by bike from Malga Ciapela to Malga Franzedaz and then to this Pass, which connects Pettorina Valley to San Pellegrino Pass, and hence to Biois and Fassa Valleys.
Concerning traditional bikes or e-bike, Marmolada Tour, which is 90 km long, will bring you to explore Pettorina, Fassa, Biois and Cordevole Valleys, admiring breath-taking landscapes and riding your bike on roads made famous by the Tour of Italy (Giro d'Italia).

IN THE SURROUNDINGS – CLIMBING

Finally, on the territory of Rocca Pietore municipality, there are many different opportunities for climbing-lovers. One of the most famous via ferratas is the «Eterna», which starts in Fedaia Pass and brings you directly to Punta Serauta, passing through the Laston. Marmolada Southern Wall is instead a paradise for climbers. However, we suggest you to always face these climbing-adventures with the help of a mountain guide, due to the high level of difficulty of these sites.
